

My Graduation Plan

MyGraduationPlan[®], an online solution for school districts, tackles the special education challenges of increasing student participation in the IEP process, increasing graduation rates, reducing drop-out rates, and providing district monitoring for transition planning compliance requirements -- all while helping students reach his or her potential.

The Reality

For most of their years in school many special education students have not felt successful in core subjects. They have resisted school and thought they were incapable. Unfortunately self-determination, self-advocacy and student participation have been weak for most IEP students, eventually leading to disengagement from school. With graduation rates at unacceptably low levels and an environment of high public accountability, school districts need further intervention to increase the graduation rates of students with disabilities.

The Solution

MyGraduationPlan was developed to change the rules of the game by challenging students to think differently, get involved in their IEP process, and make a strong connection to the importance of graduation. By providing relevant planning tools and monitoring, MyGraduationPlan engages students and parents in the transition and graduation planning process and increases self-advocacy for post-secondary achievement. Additionally school district administrators can monitor students' progress in their transition planning all from their computer desktop.
